Get Involved

Our work takes time, energy and resources. We’re almost entirely made up of people giving us their spare time, save for one administrator who keeps on top of the less-exciting tasks that might otherwise distract us from spending time on the streets.

Attend one of our workshops

The preferred way of getting involved with Green and Black Cross is by getting trained as a legal observer or action medic. These ‘on the ground’ support roles form the lifeblood of GBC, and are often a first step towards more involvement in the group.

Attend a local group meeting

If you’re unable to attend a workshop but have something useful to bring to GBC, you might want to attend your local group meeting.

Give a donation

We appreciate that many people can only give us very little, if any time at all. We do have operational costs to cover, so giving us a donation is also a gesture of solidarity.

Workshops

We run regular workshops throughout the year. These usually take place in areas that have a regional GBC group, but we also train people in radical spaces such as direct action camps and occupations. We also run a training for trainers programme to help share our knowledge far and wide.

If you would like to get involved but aren’t sure how you can best use your skills, have a read of our ‘What we do’ section to learn more about what we do.

Attending any of our trainings will help you get a feel for what Green and Black Cross is all about and is the preferred way of getting involved.

Our workshops include:

- How to become a Legal Observer
- How to become an Action Medic
- Know Your Rights

We also offer training for police station and court support.

If you’re part of a group who would like us to run a workshop for you, get in touch.

Our trainings are always free to the public and open to all, subject to a safer spaces policy.

We work hard in solidarity with as many social justice struggles as we can. This has included supporting action against environmental destruction, street fascism, austerity and cuts. All of our work directly confronts attempts to punish and deter protest by the police and prosecutors.

This work takes time, energy and resources. It is driven first and foremost by the time and energy of people involved in the group, but we do have costs: bust cards and legal observer bibs, phone credit and computer hardware, our website and email servers, travel and venue costs for trainings. We cover these with personal donations received through this page.

Giving to us is a gesture of solidarity, supporting a broad movement for radical social change.

Regular donations let us plan our work more effectively.

Give a monthly donation using direct debit
