

Trauma and Emotional Support

We believe in the importance of mutual support in enabling sustainable activism. It's easy to go from action to action without taking time to reflect – here are some sources of support.

Working hard on projects we care deeply about has the risk of exhaustion and burn out. Once police violence, arrest, and going through the court system are added into the mix, it is no wonder that trauma and stress are a huge problem. We all need to take a step back sometimes, to talk to each other, and to feel comfortable to seek further support early.

This guide lists some suggested sources of support.

1. Activist support – sources of support specifically for people involved in protest
2. Other sources of support – more general sources of emotional support, and advice on mental health issues

1. Activist Support

Defendants Meetings

If you have been arrested a part of a mass arrest at a protest, meeting others in the same position can be very helpful both practically and emotionally. If we have your contact details (contact us to make sure!), we will email you and let you know of any planned defendants meetings.

Action Debriefs

If you have been involved in an action as a legal observer, we run action debriefs, either separately, or as part of our regular meetings. Contact us to find out when we are debriefing for your action.

Activist Trauma Support

Have a website with resources about mental health from an activist perspective.

Counselling for Social Change

Offer low cost counselling in Cornwall and FREE phone counselling for activists.

The Free Psychotherapy Network

Are a loose network of therapists offering therapy for people who can't afford it, see their website for more info. They also have a page which links to other low cost therapy.

2. Other Sources of Support
